

Raymond James Launches New e-Statements

Raymond James is now able to provide our clients the choice to opt out of paper statements and receive their client statements online. Instead of mailing their statements, clients will receive an email notification when their statements are available online, giving them faster access to their information.

Many Advantages

E-statements make good sense for a lot of good reasons – they are more secure, more convenient and more timely than mail delivery. They also reduce the amount of paper we use and receive. And that helps save more trees, water and energy.

How Paperless Statements Work

With paperless statements you will receive monthly emails notifying you when your statement is ready to view at the client log in section of www.raymondjames.ca or the client log in section of the website of your Raymond James Financial Advisor. Here, they will view the exact image of what they have always received in the mail – just paperless and online.

It's important to note that for enhanced security, the confidential client statements will not be attached in the email notification to clients. Rather, you will receive the link to the Client Site, where you will use your ID and password to login to retrieve and view your statements.
